FOREWORDS

This exhibition is dedicated to victims of rich and powerful pedophile and sexual violence rings because The Hate U Give Lil infant Fks Everybody.

Dear beautiful children of God,

I urge you to share your stories with loved ones and authorities, note down the names of people in authority that you have spoken to and tell others the name of those in authority you've reported the crime to. In case they end up not taking your case seriously. There is no space in society for these types of people and their enablers.

You don't need to feel ashamed when you get justice for your pain. When you pursue justice then that pain can be seen as the scars of war that you will expect to see on any hero/warrior. Yes, you are a hero, when you seek justice. After all what else does a hero mean?

Yours truly

FORE PRAYERS

To the rich and powerful who are part of a pedophile and sexual violent ring. I pray to God that swift and hard justice finds you and your family, if you don't submit yourself to authorities or cleanse your sinful self from our society.

For those of you that are the first to submit yourself to justice and provide information about all the other members of your society, then I pray that if you are truly repentant that the hand of justice should be slightly lenient towards you.

For the time of judgement have come, and if you don't have the courage to own up to your sin's and your family does not report you to authorities, then I pray to God that he puts your sins in the hands of your family members and enablers.

Once you've cleanse the world of these evil, God, I pray that you cure the world with love. Forever.

In the name of Jesus I pray.

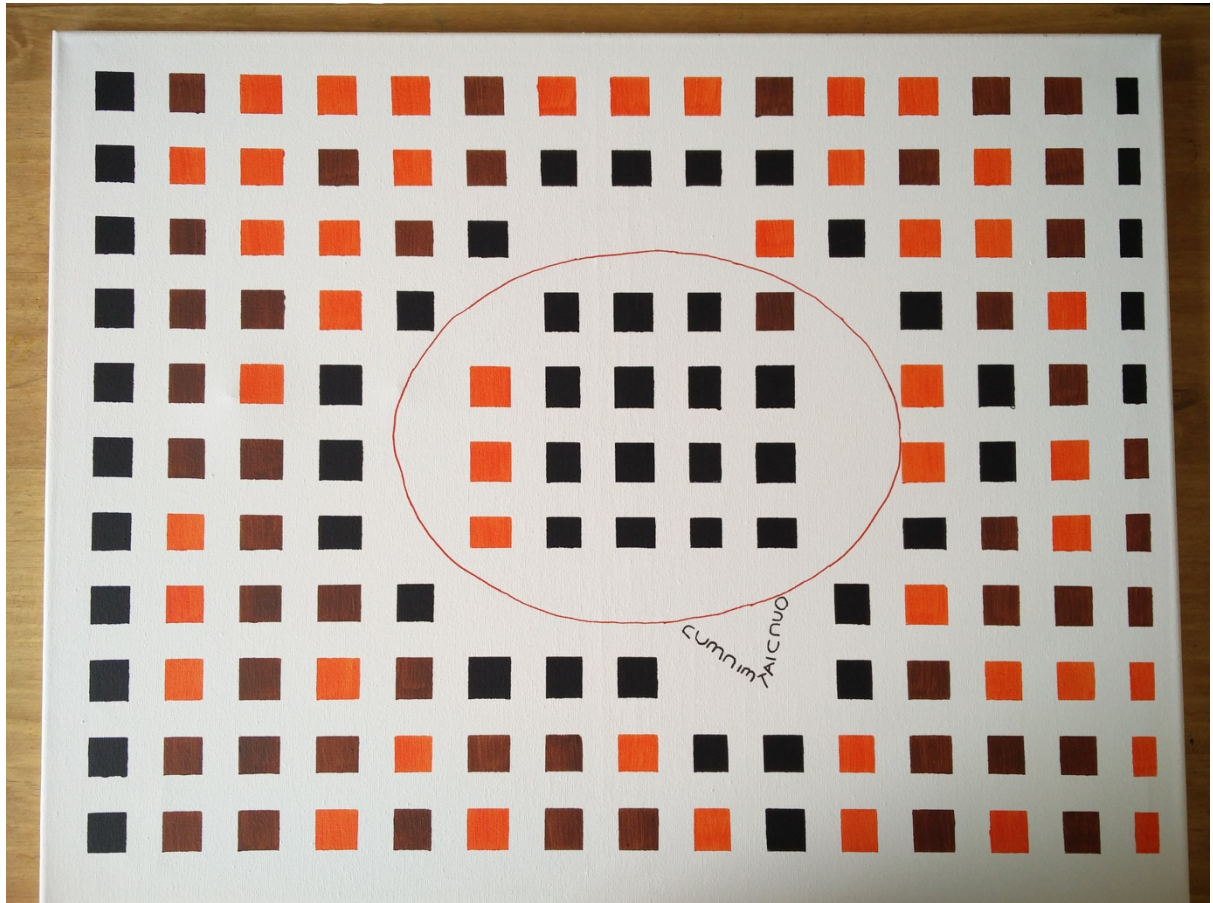

Amen

ABOUT THE ARTIST

The Artist, The Shadow of the Don Killuminati II (Oluwagbemileke Afariogun), draws his inspiration from a blend of technology and ancient Egyptian art.

He incorporates the plain use of shapes and lines in ancient Egyptian art with attributes of the technology age. To give his arts a modern feel. His arts are Abstract using only three colors, plain lines, curves, letters and boxes to depict a story. Can you spot the hidden pixel art?

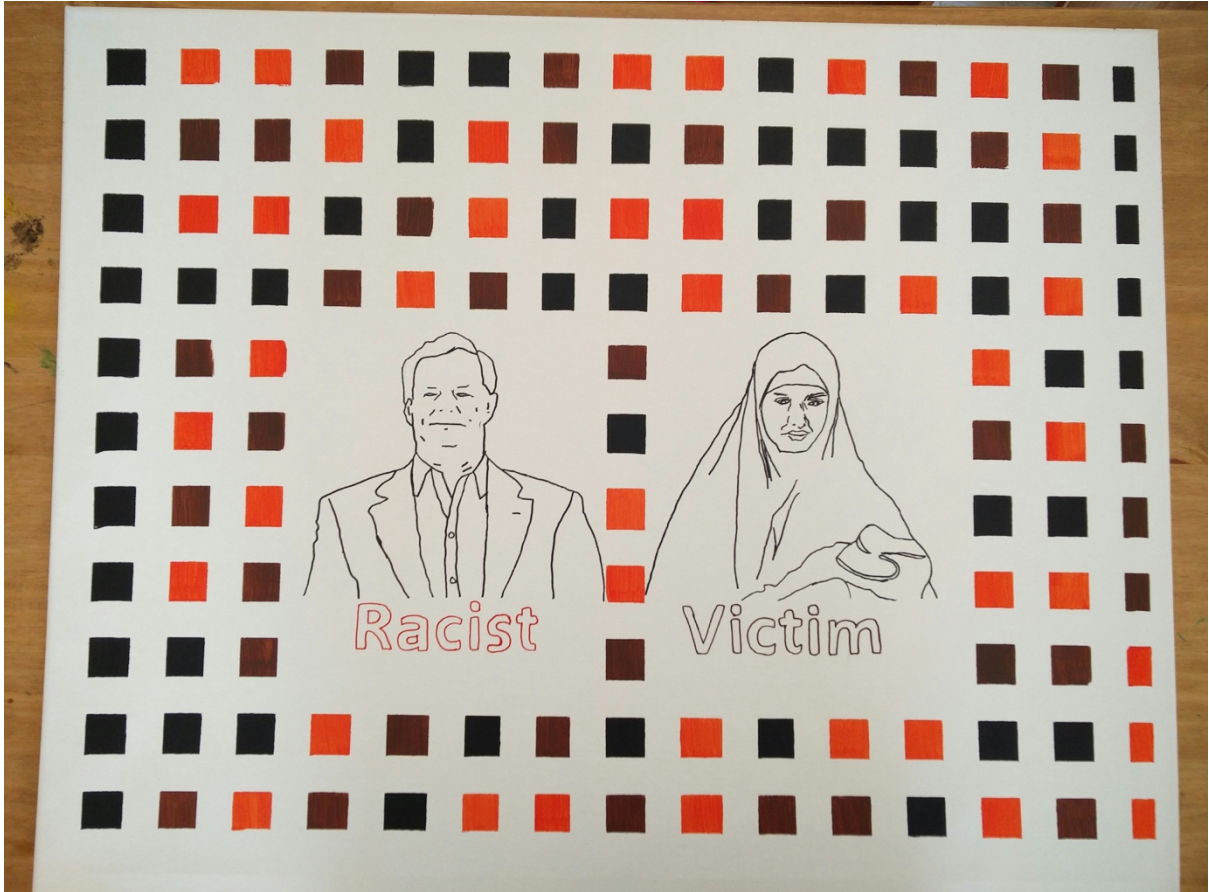

Name: #Swahili #Communication_Confusion

The Speech Mark is made up of jumbled up letters that spell the word communication. The artist explores the art of communication. How a single statement could mean completely different things to different people. Also, how one person could think a piece of information is useful whereas its junk. How one person could think someone is on their side, however the person is only telling them what they were phishing for as they had picked up on the none verbal communication.

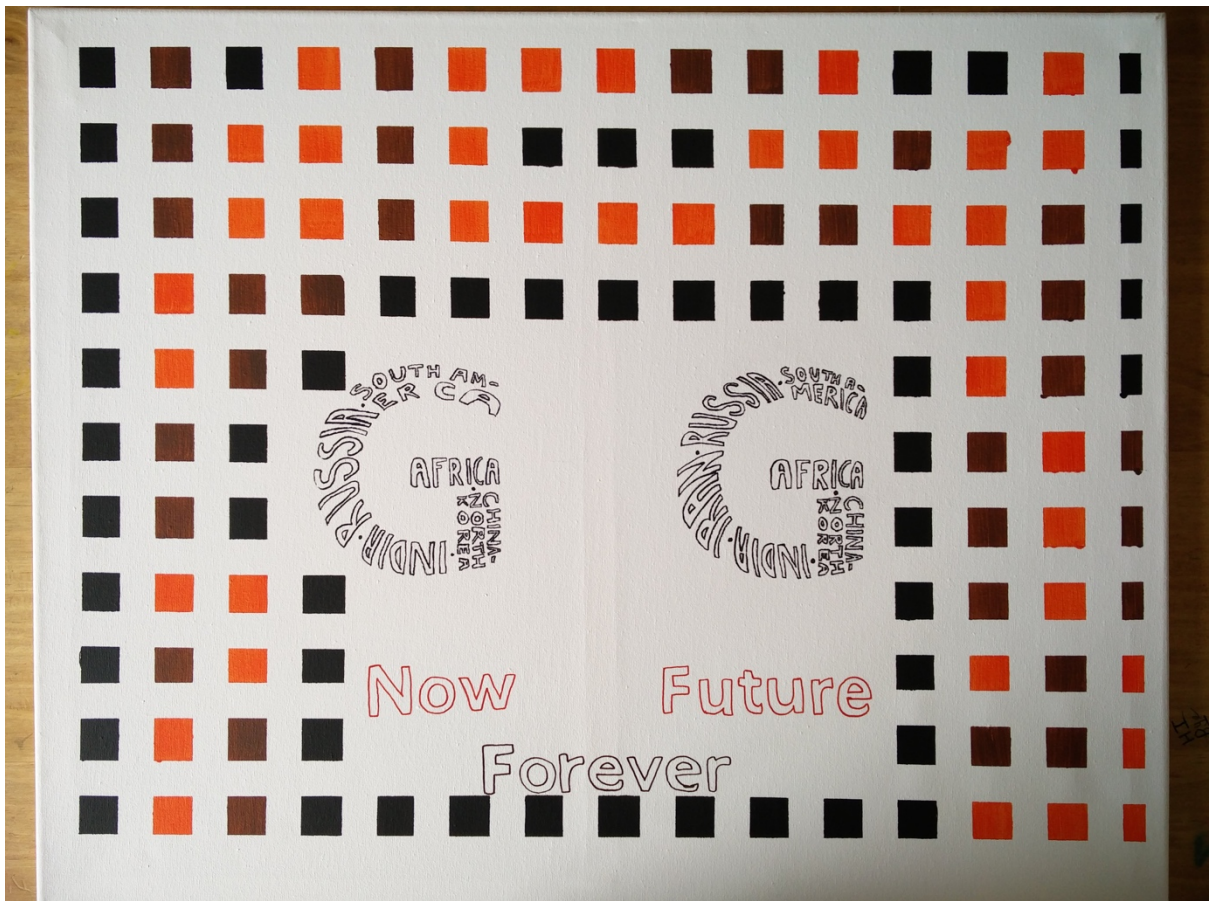

Information and Communication is now the single most important commodity. Wars will be won and lost on the basis of information. Trusting the right people with information is key.

Name: #Stay_Oppressed

This piece explores how humans seem to prefer corporate lies to the truth. Say for example choosing to believe that Elon Musk is pro environment friendliness whilst at the same time building a commercial rocket to space, which means he is working hard to destroy the universe.

Can another country influence voters or change the course of the democratic process of another country?

Name: #Code_Review

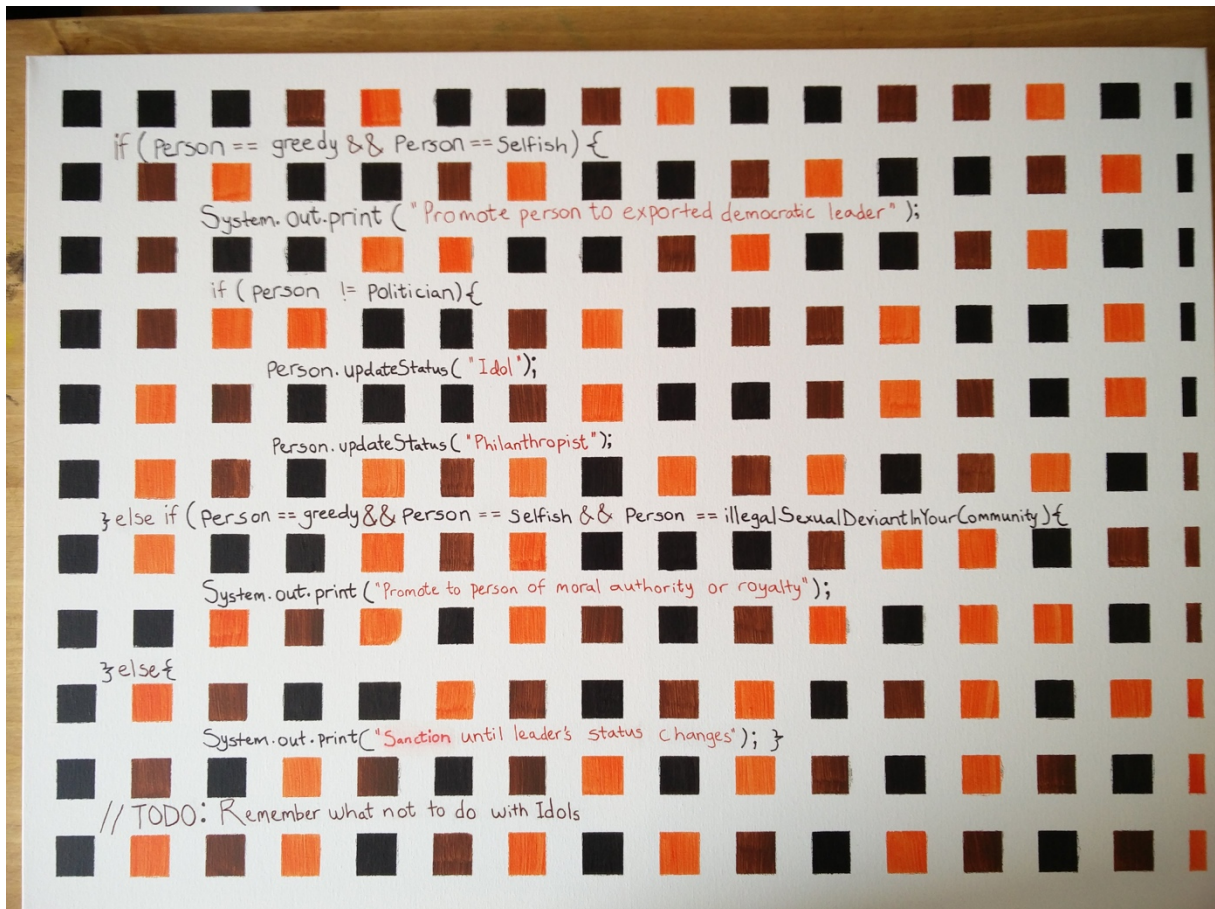

The artist explores the art of writing clean code.

Name: # Synonym

Notice how the colours are replacing each other? Its hard to tell.

Name: # Bugs

Imagine if someone had enough vaccines for Covid 19 that will cure a trillion people but kept it to themself and only gave away enough to cure ten thousand people. Will you adore that person? If no. why not? Because lots of people will die?

What if someone had enough money to stop starvation. Like a billionaire. Would you adore them?

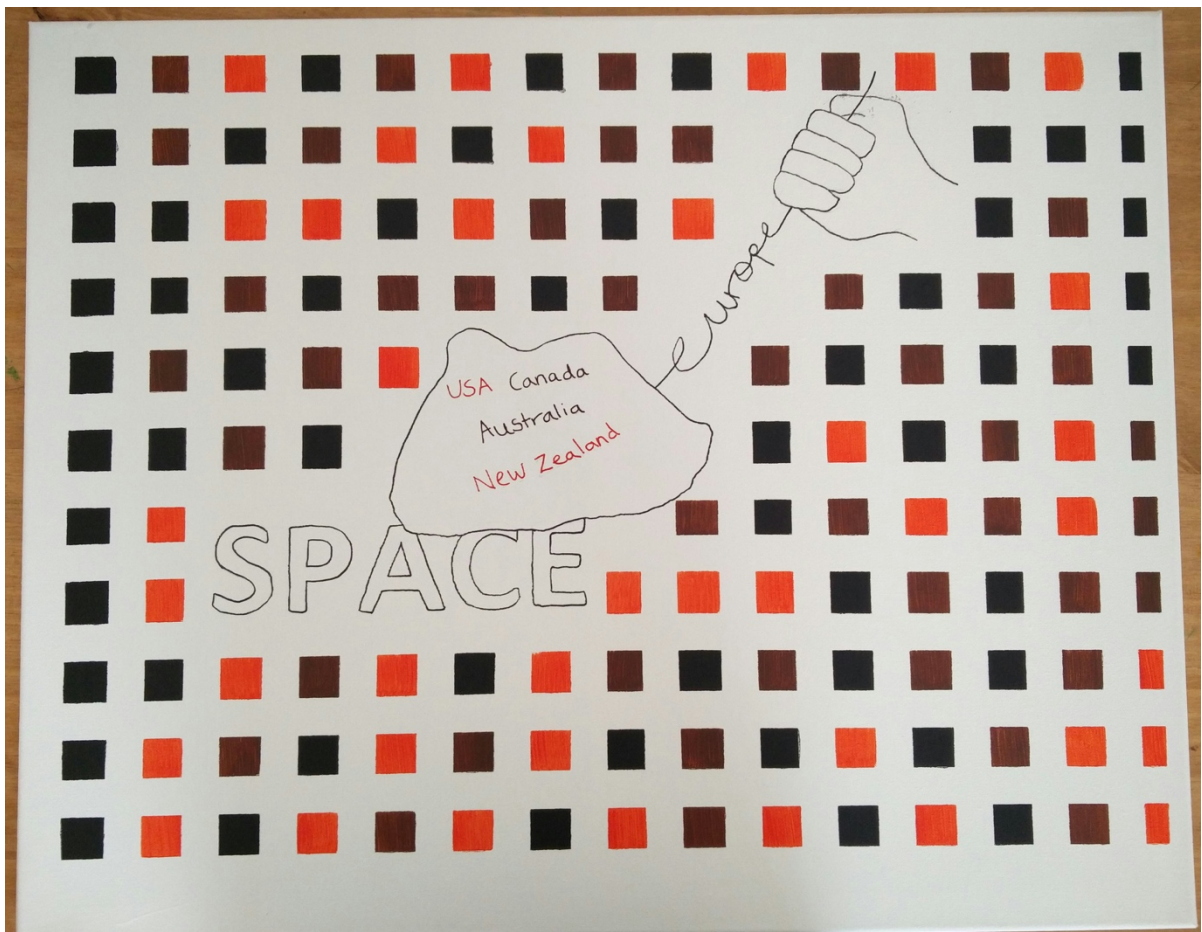

How can someone like Bill Gates for example position himself as a saviour and the solution to Africans problem. When he is part of the problem. Bill Gates the generous- selfish and greedy saviour that the world has put on a pedestal. Everyone wants to be like Bill Gates. Greedy and Selfish.

Fun Facts:

Notice how the word Idol has been written in a similar format as the TV program: American idol.

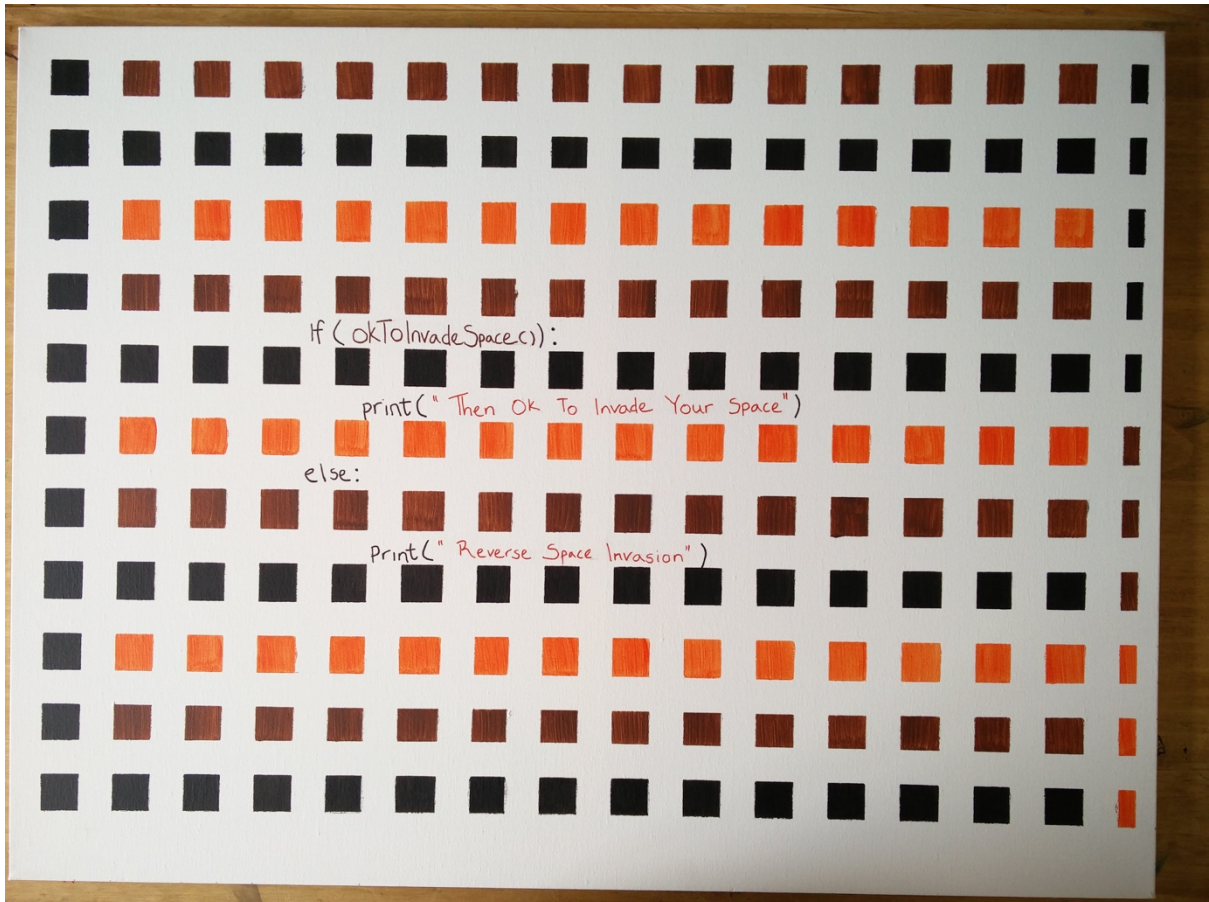

The inspiration for this painting was from a statement the artist dad told him about how difficult it would be for a rich person to get to heaven. Comparing it to a camel going through the eye of a needle.

Name: #Occupy

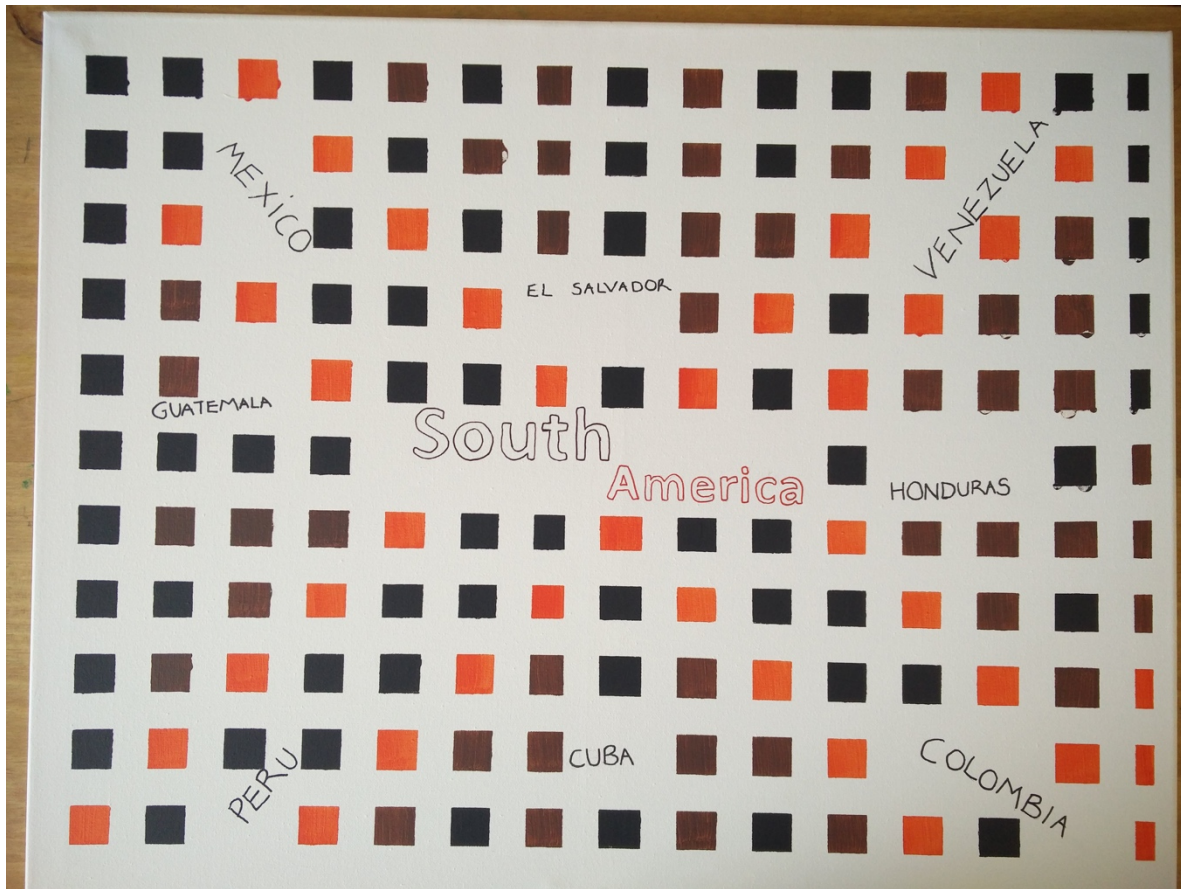

This piece explores the art of occupying space.

Name: #Python

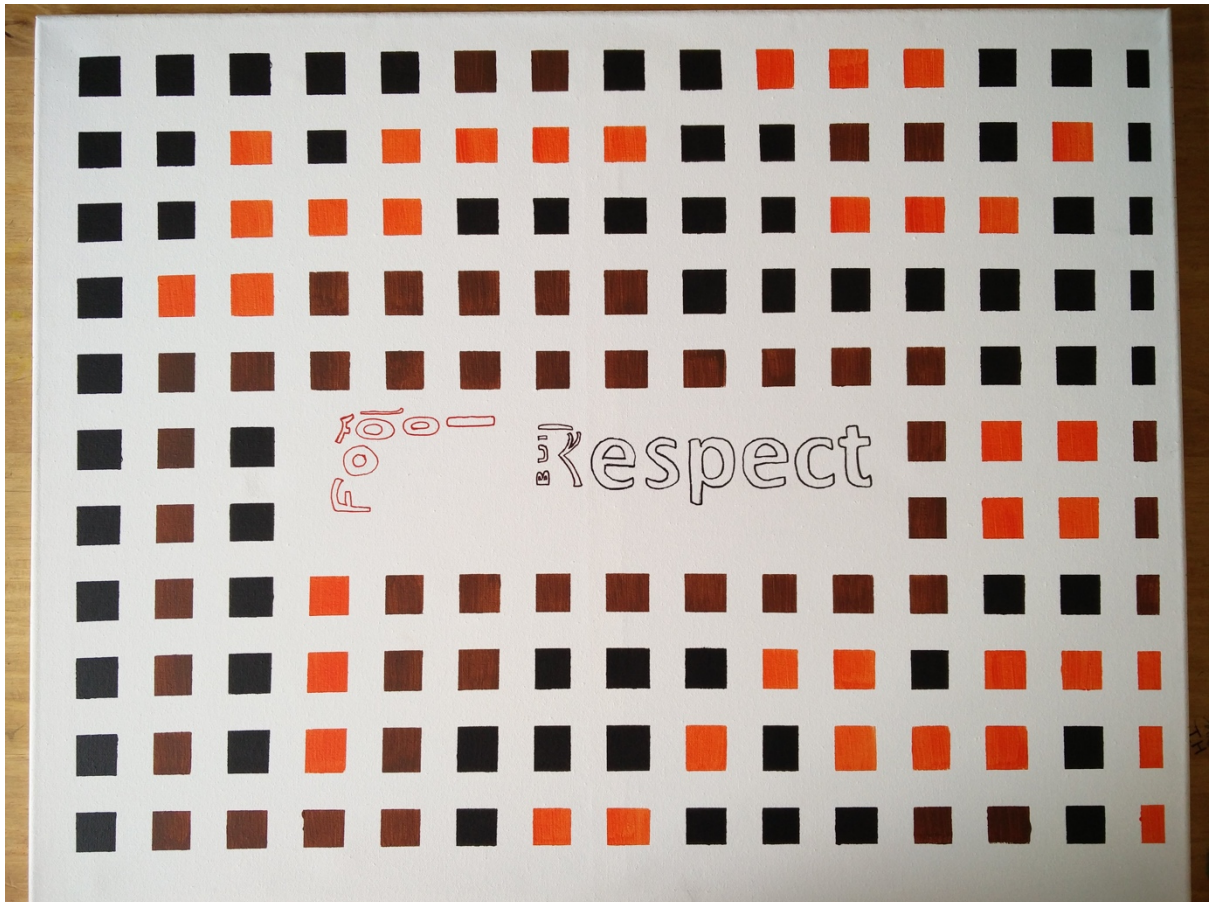

This piece explores the simplicity of the Python programming language.

Name: #The_Rise_Of_South

This piece explores colourful countries in America. Notice how the word South is rising up North.

Name: #Repeat_Old_Mistakes?

This piece explores the mentality of the street. Exploring the word Fool, Respect and the combination of the two.

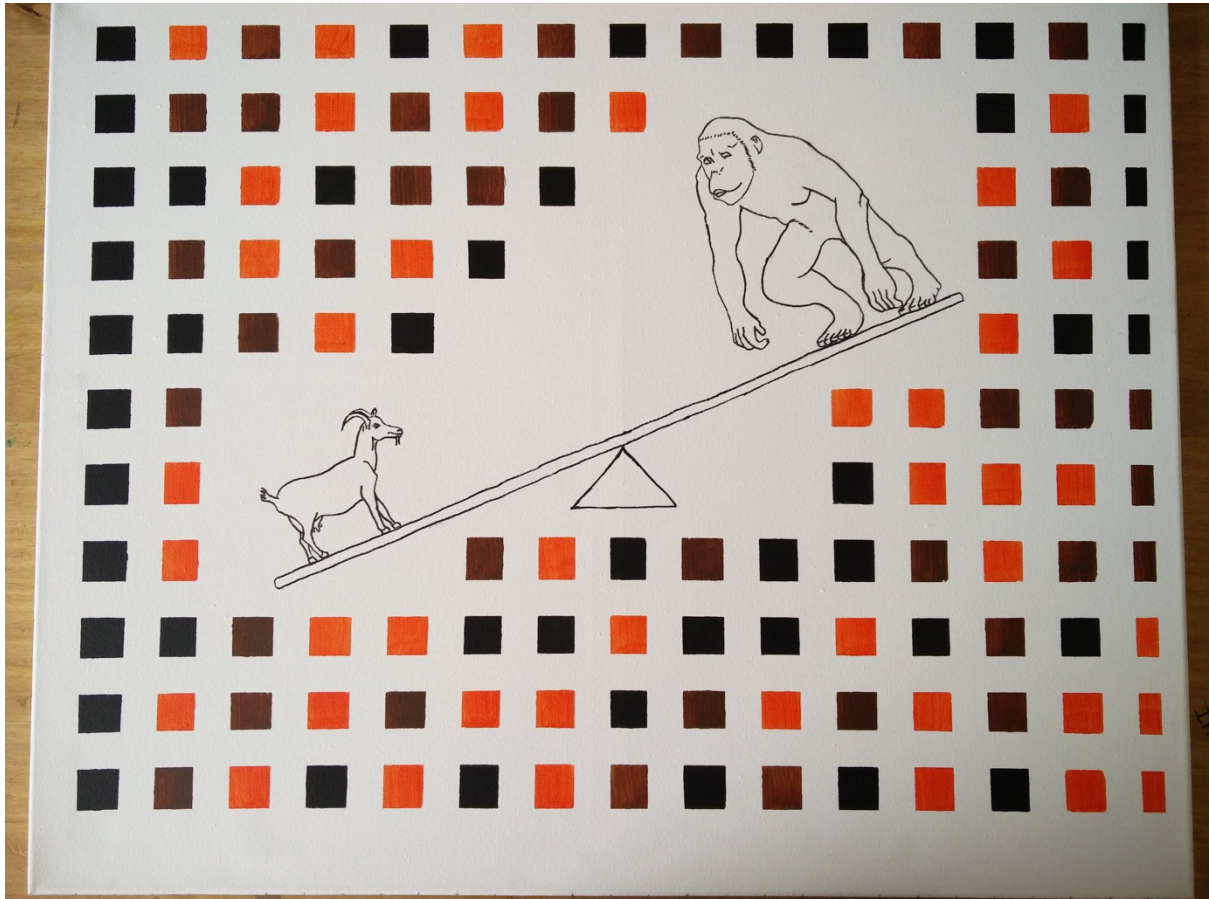

Respect seems to be what is automatically given by most people but taken away by a bully.

The double fool in the shape of a gun depicts the phrase – Fool me once shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me.

Linking the two together and street mentality if a gang went to war for their leader with a rival gang because they were promised respect in the area, but then didn't get that respect will they fight for the same leader if there is a 2nd war? Would that be wise? Or will they switch sides.

Name:

#The_Goat_The_Pet_And_The_Desperate_Class

Notice that the Goat weighs more. How is that possible? This painting explores the concept of human psychology. Ever noticed how one shepherd is able to control thousands of goats, with just a few friendly hand gesture. No violence. Looking closer and at this relationship, the goat probably thinks the shepherd is very kind to lead them to greener pastures every day. Not realising that the shepherd is only interested in turning them to meat when the time is right.

What if you need to herd billions of goats. Can one shepherd do this? What if the shepherd turns a number of the goats to pets. Only the pets are fully aware of the shepherd's intentions, the pet goats have immunity from being turned to meat, their job is to embed themselves in the herd and guide the other goats to their imminent demise. But there is a problem. The other goats may notice the preferential treatment that the pet goats receive and if they do they may revolt. So, the shepherd creates a desperate class of goats who are discriminated against on the basis of something like the type of wool on their body or perhaps their eyes etc. This way the none pet goats that are lucky not to be considered to be part of the desperate class can feel good about themselves knowing full well that they are getting better treatment than the desperate class, their ability to look down at the desperate class makes them feel good about themselves and ignore the fact that the pets are getting even better treatment. Little do they know, that all of them are heading to the slaughterhouse apart from the pets.

But there is another problem, the desperate class could revolt. One way of getting around that problem is to implement the discrimination long enough for the goat to perpetuate it themselves. At the point when a new born Goat is hard wired to hide its "bad" wool or desire to have bigger eyes because of the environment that the sheppard had previously created, then at this point the sheppard can take the role of someone that is attempting to stop the discrimination. Mission completed.

Can a goat in the desperate class be rich? Of course, a few, as long as that goat is defined by everything it owns and the sheppard has the ability to take it away. This way the sheppard can give the illusion that the system is fair and that the shepard is working hard to stamp out discrimination.

So why does the Ape weigh more than the goat? Because an Ape would be offended if you called it a goat.

Moral of the story there are worse things to be compared to than a Monkey. Goat is one of them.

When a Goat goes Ape, the shepperd has sleepless nights.

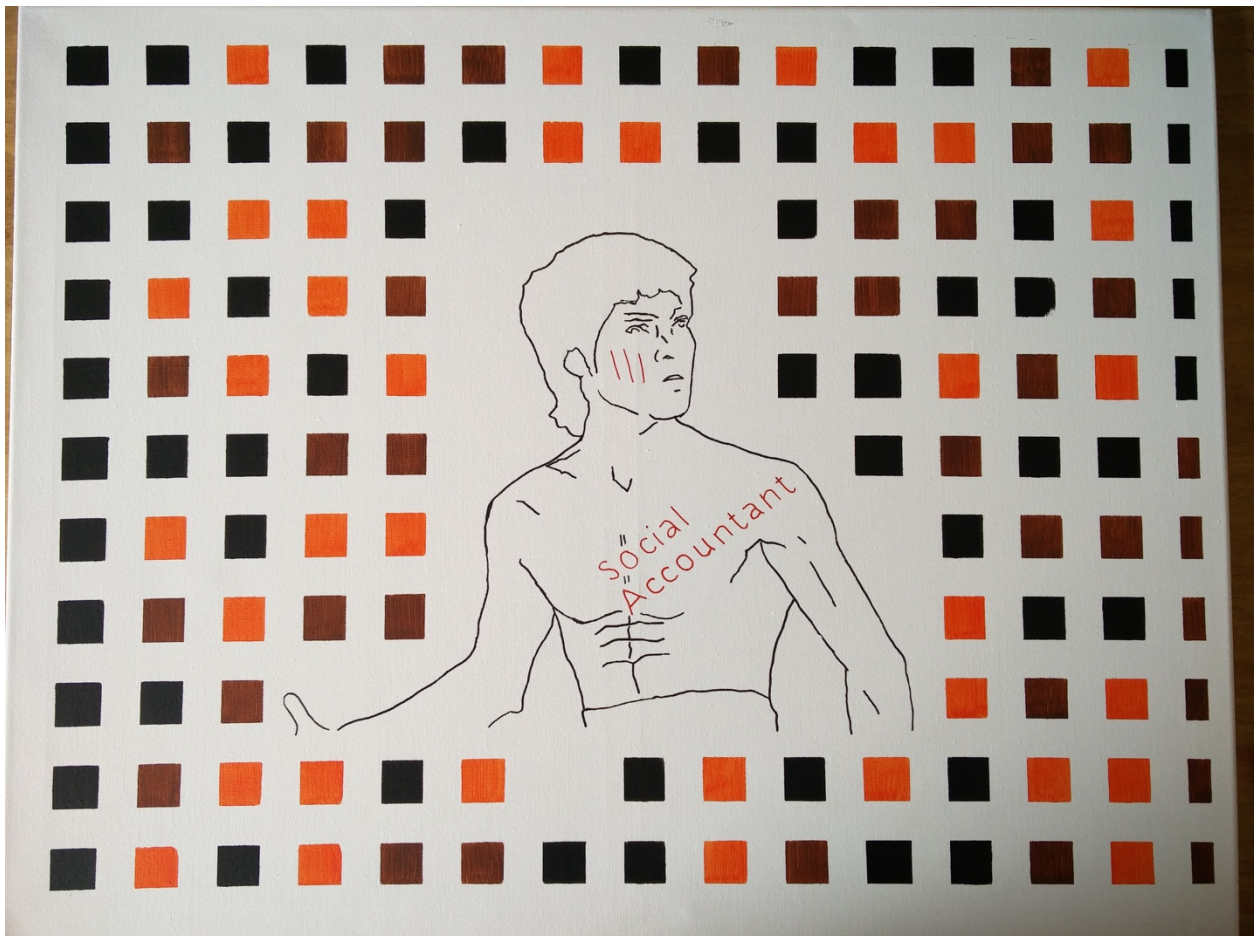

FUN FACT

Was going to name the piece, Theory of Evolution, as I made the painting during a cancelled trip to the Galapagos Island.

Talking about wool. Here is a fun article:

Name: #Social_Accountant #Reconcilliation

With this piece the artist explores his childhood of watching chinese movies which had the reoccurring theme of a villain killing the hero's father or, teacher or leader as a child and then the child grows up to avenge the father's, teacher's or leader's death. Hence why Bruce Lee has a Social Accountant Tattoo. A light hearted take on how the death of one person could lead to the hero killing many many people.

Name: #The_Light #Be_Fair

FUN FACT: The artist always signs his art with the letters AFTD – Meaning: Apologies For The Delay. 😊
